Overarching principles

1. People living with HIV should be at the centre of their own care, with the ability to have meaningful involvement in the development and delivery of services.

2. There should be equality of access to, and equity in provision of, health and social care for all people regardless of age, gender, sexuality, ethnicity, religion, physical ability, health literacy, immigration or residency status. HIV remains a stigmatised and socially complex diagnosis that disproportionately affects already marginalised population groups. People living with HIV should be provided with equitable and non-discriminatory care across all health and social care settings.

3. All patient-related information whether clinical, pseudo-anonymised or anonymous should be held securely in compliance with information governance standards and national legislation. People living with HIV should expect that only data that are useful for surveillance, commissioning, monitoring of care or research will be collected and the information will not be used for any other purpose.
New structure and content

1. Testing, diagnosis and prevention
2. Person-centred care (including stigma and well-being)
3. HIV outpatient care and treatment
4. Complex HIV care
5. Sexual and reproductive health
6. Psychological care
7. HIV across the life course
8. Developing and maintaining excellent care

Statements of support

“NHS England welcomes the work by BHIVA to update the standards, which will be taken into consideration when NHS England reviews its HIV service specification” Rob Coster (NHS England)

“It has been greatly encouraging to see BHIVA walk their talk by ‘meaningfully' engaging community members at every stage in the development and production of this resource” Alastair Hudson (Stigma Index)

“Highlighting the specific needs of older women living with HIV is an important step in supporting women living with HIV across the life course” Shema Tariq (UCL)

“As a woman living with HIV, I find that stigma and self stigma are sometimes more of an issue than the HIV itself - great that this is addressed in the BHIVA standards” Jo Josh (UK-CAB)
